RATIONALE

TRIS Rating affirms the company rating on Bangkok Dusit Medical Services PLC (BDMS) and the ratings on its senior unsecured debentures at “AA+”, with a “stable” rating outlook. The ratings reflect BDMS’s strong market position as the largest private healthcare provider in Thailand with its extensive network of hospitals and strong franchise of hospital brands. The ratings also take into consideration the company’s sound operating performance and strong balance sheet. However, the ratings are weighed down by the competitive environment of the healthcare service industry as well as external factors affecting the number of international patients.

KEY RATING CONSIDERATIONS

Strong competitive position in Thailand’s healthcare market

BDMS has maintained its dominant market position as Thailand’s largest private healthcare provider. The company owns a vast nationwide hospital network and employs the country’s largest medical workforce, which comprises over 14,800 doctors and 10,000 registered nurses. As of June 2025, BDMS operated 58 hospitals, totaling 6,707 available beds. In 2024, the company reported total operating revenue of THB109.4 billion, capturing an estimated 48% share of total revenue generated by private healthcare service providers listed on the Stock Exchange of Thailand (SET).

Its extensive infrastructure, coupled with the ability to provide consistently high-quality service, has enabled BDMS to attract both middle- to upper-income Thai patients (accounting for around 70% of healthcare service revenue) and a substantial international patient base (around 30%). BDMS’s leading hospital brands, such as Bangkok Hospital, Samitivej Hospital, and BNH Hospital, Phyathai Hospital, and Paolo Hospital, are also widely recognized for their high-quality healthcare services.

Looking forward, BDMS’s strategy of continually expanding its network, investing in advanced medical technologies, and strengthening the capabilities of its Centers of Excellence (COEs) should maintain its leading position, despite intense competition from both domestic and international healthcare service providers.

Revenue from international patients to continue to grow

We expect BDMS’s international patient revenue to continue to grow, driven by rising demand for specialized treatments and chronic care services. We expect strong revenue growth of patients from Europe, the Middle East, Myanmar, China, and other countries to mitigate the negative impact from a near-term decline in Cambodian patient volume.

We believe Thailand will maintain a strong position in the medical and wellness tourism market, supported by ease of travel, high-quality healthcare infrastructure, skilled medical professionals, renowned Thai hospitality, and competitive treatment costs. Leveraging international collaborations and Thailand’s reputation as a global healthcare hub, the company is well positioned to capture the growing international patient market.

In 2024, BDMS’s international patient revenue reached about THB29 billion, up by 11% year-on-year (y-o-y), and continued to grow by a further 9% increase in the first half of 2025, despite a 12% y-o-y decline in revenue from Cambodian patients caused by border tensions.

Moderate revenue growth and sound earnings expected

We project BDMS's total operating revenue to grow at a mid-single-digit rate annually over the next three years, supported by increasing domestic patient volumes, the recovery of medical tourism, growing demand for specialized treatments, as well as higher intensity of care. Revenue from the health insurance segment will likely serve as a key support for the growth in domestic patient revenue, as self-pay growth faces constraints from the economic environment and alternative social welfare schemes. However, BDMS's hospital network, which includes social security hospitals, further supports the revenue source. This trend of healthcare insurance is evident in the rising proportion of insured patients, which increased to 38% of total patient revenue in the first half of 2025, up from 37% in 2024 and 36% in 2023. We anticipate the potential negative impact of the co-payment insurance shift (started in March 2025) to be gradual. While there might be a slight initial reduction in hospitalizations for simple diseases, we expect it will take time for new policies to accumulate and significantly change the patient mix, as most existing patients will retain full coverage.

We project BDMS's EBITDA margin of 24.0%-24.5% during 2025-2027, primarily supported by the high-intensity revenue from international patient visits, combined with the company's economies of scale, benefits from pooled procurement and bargaining purchasing power, as well as ongoing cost-saving measures.

In 2024, the company's operating revenue grew 7% to THB109.4 billion, while the first-half of 2025 results showed continued growth of 5% y-o-y. The company's EBITDA margin stood at around 25% during these periods, slightly higher than the 22%-24% average among listed peers.

Low-debt balance sheet and strong liquidity

We expect BDMS's capital structure to remain solid with ample liquidity over the next three years. Looking ahead, we expect BDMS to record capital expenditures of THB10-THB11 billion per year during 2025-2027, mainly for the maintenance of facilities and for new project developments as well as hospital network expansion. A key investment is the THB23.5 billion BDMS Silver Wellness and Residence Project, which has received Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) approval and is scheduled to start construction in 2026, with completion targeted for 2029. Based on our projections, the internal cash flow should be sufficient to fund a substantial portion of these investments, with some additional borrowing likely required. Without other large debt-funded acquisitions, BDMS's capital structure should remain very strong, with a debt to EBITDA ratio of 0.5-1.0 times during the forecast period.

We assess BDMS's liquidity position as strong over the next 12 months. As of June 2025, the company held THB6.9 billion in cash and equivalents and had THB17.4 billion in undrawn short-term credit facilities. We expect the company to generate funds from operations (FFO) of about THB23.5 billion over the next 12 months. These funds will primarily be allocated towards annual capital expenditures and the repayment of maturing debentures and long-term debts. Upcoming obligations over the next 12 months include THB3 billion in debentures, THB363 million in lease liabilities, and THB2.5 billion in short-term loans, along with planned capital expenditure (CAPEX) of approximately THB10 billion in 2025.

Debt structure

As of June 2025, BDMS had no priority debt.

BASE-CASE ASSUMPTIONS

TRIS Rating's base-case assumptions for BDMS's operations in 2025-2027 are as follows:

- Revenue of THB112-THB121 billion per annum.
- EBITDA margin to stay in the 24.0%-24.5% range.
- Total capital spending of THB10-THB11 billion per year during the forecast period.

RATING OUTLOOK

The "stable" outlook reflects our expectation that BDMS will be able to maintain its leading position in the private healthcare service market and deliver sound operating performance.

RATING SENSITIVITIES

The ratings and/or outlook could be revised downward if BDMS's financial position and operating performance deteriorate significantly, or any unanticipated debt-financed investments substantially weaken the company's balance sheet, with its debt to EBITDA ratio exceeding 1.5 times for an extended period. A rating upgrade is unlikely in the medium term.

COMPANY OVERVIEW

BDMS was established in 1969. “Bangkok Hospital”, its first private hospital, commenced operation in 1972. BDMS was listed on the SET in 1991. As of June 2025, the major shareholders of BDMS were Dr. Prasert Prasarttong-Osoth and his spouse, with a combined shareholding of 9.3%.

BDMS is the largest private hospital group in Thailand, owning 58 hospitals as of June 2025. The company delivers a comprehensive array of healthcare services spanning all levels and intensities of care. BDMS offers conventional healthcare, from secondary to tertiary and super-tertiary care levels, as well as preventive healthcare. In 2011, the company merged with Health Network PLC (HNC), the major shareholder of Phyathai Hospital and Paolo Hospital Group. During 2018-2019, the company launched “BDMS Wellness Clinic” to provide preventive healthcare services. Its wellness clinic is situated next to the “Movenpick BDMS Wellness Resort Bangkok”, a 211-room hotel.

The company’s total operating revenue was THB109.4 billion in 2024 and THB55.6 billion for the first half of 2025. In the first six months of 2025, about 70% of its total patient revenue came from Thai patients with international patient revenue constituting the remainder. Self-pay patients made up 48% of patient revenue, followed by patients covered by health insurance (38%), company-contracted patients (8%), as well as patients under the social security scheme and others (6%).
